PROFILE

Quinta da Bacalhôa is located on the north-facing slopes of Azeitão. It finds the ideal "terroir" for the production of excellent wines – clay-limestone and well-drained soils with a mild climate due to the strong Atlantic influence. The varieties chosen in the staging of the Quinta, benefit from the natural conditions for a slow and balanced maturation.

The elementary wines fermented at a controlled temperature (25°C), followed by a period of "cuvaison" (post-fermentative skin maceration) of 1 week. After separating the solid parts, they aged for 12 months in new 225 liter French fine grain oak barrels. Subsequently, a careful selection of the best wines produced from that farm was made, barrel-by-barrel selection, and finally the final batch of Palácio da Bacalhôa 2016 was elaborated.

Its bottling took place in September 2018 and, already in bottle, it aged in the Quinta's cellars until it is sold.

TASTING NOTES

The 2016 vintage, presents itself with a deep red color and very concentrated. Notes of red fruits combined with nuances of coffee, mocha, vanilla and dry fruits. Fully structured, complex, fresh, elegant and persistent.
